LETTER FROM HON. R. J. WALKER.

On account of the great authority of Mr. Walker in what respects Government finances, we take great pleasure in laying before the public an extract of a letter from nim, addressed to a citizen of the city of Philadelphia. The letter is dated from Washington City on the 6th instant. Mr-Walker writes as follows:

"In reply to your inquiry, I would say that the table of the public debt of the Unitmorning, is accurate in all respects, having been taken from the books of the United States Treasury. You ask me if it is a fact that the annual expenditures of the Government has been increased as therein stated, over forty-six millions of dollars, ($46,056,-559,) by an augmentation to that extent, of the yearly interest in currency, of the public debt since the 30th of April, 1865. I answer that it is an indisputable fact, and I will add that from a careful consideration of the condition of the Treasury, it is clear that this annual interest will go on increasing. The appearance of our noble candidate for the Presidency is thus described as he took the chair in Tammany Hall: "Seymour is dressed in the old style shad-belly coat, which is buttoned across his chest, leaving open a diamoned-shaped portion of irreproachable white linen, and a very neatly arranged black neck-tie of moderate dimensions. The head is wellshaped and set gracefully back on a firm pair of shoulders, and the lower part of the face, below the eyes, is almost a perfect oval. The eyes are of a brilliant brown color and shine like diamonds beneath a firmly balanced forehead, which is bald, the baldness extending back as far as the back part of the skull. The mouth is pleasant and mobile, and when Seymour smiles at you the feeling produced is a genial one. This is a cultured man of free tastes and high purposes, a man of
